We're back!

After a two month hiatus, during which I've been doing some testing, tweaking, and experimenting with all sorts of things at New Times Home Biz, eBiz EYE is back. One thing I don't do is send out communications just for the sake of it.

At New Times Home Biz, there have been some subtle changes, and some very visible ones that will be introduced very soon. I'll be discussing those in the next issue.

This issue of eBiz EYE is devoted to how you can get some leverage from becoming an Affiliate. It can be a good source of consistent income that can go on for quite some time.

Don't be daunted by this affiliate stuff - it's not difficult ... and it can be fun.

Want to know more about affiliate training?

Affiliate marketing has to be done right to get the best out of it. Logical isn't it? But how do you know what niche to select to give you the best opportunities for long-term income? Will a niche fit your ethics and principles? (This is an important point, because selecting just any niche means you won't really have your heart in it). Always enjoy what you do.

Now ... what about all the marketing stuff?

To start, read this quick article.

Beware of registered trademarks

Now, if you're searching for products to become an affiliate for, and you create a simple sales page (as shown in Becoming an affiliate stripped bare), be aware of infringements of trademarked products.

The Google surprise!

If you didn't know, Google had an affiliate network. I've never used it, but thousands of merchants and website owners use (or used) the system. But guess what Google is now doing? Closing it down! All those thousands will need to find new affiliate programs to market their niche sites.

Here's Google's statement.

Now, this might not affect you. But it's just another indication of the continual and never-ending changes that Google keeps introducing. That's the way of the 'net.

Other businesses will see an opportunity and take up the slack.

For marketers of info-products, Amazon's the way to go!

Until next time ...
